

Passionate about child welfare and community advocacy?

The Washington State Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) Citizen Review Panel (CRP) is looking for dedicated volunteers to help improve the safety and wellbeing of children and families in our state.

What is the Citizen Review Panel?

The CRP is a group of community members who review child welfare policies, procedures, and practices. They provide recommendations to DCYF on ways to improve programs and services.

There are three CRP panels:

- Children, Youth, and Families Statewide
- Race, Equity and Impact
- Prevention, Investigation, and Family Services

Who Can Join?

We welcome people from all backgrounds, including parents, educators, healthcare professionals, and community advocates with experience in child abuse and neglect, prevention and/or treatment, and a heart for making a difference!

Why Join?

- Advocate for children and families in Washington state.
- Collaborate with policymakers and child welfare professionals.
- Help shape policies that impact your community.

Interested in joining?

To apply, please email Community Engagement at dcyf.communityengagement@dcyf.wa.gov.

For more information, visit www.dcyf.wa.gov/practice/practice-improvement/citizen-review or scan the QR code.

If you would like free copies of this publication in an alternative format or language, please contact DCYF Constituent Relations at 1-800-723-4831 or email communications@dcyf.wa.gov.

DCYF PUBLICATION PA_0011 (04-2025)

Washington State Department of
CHILDREN, YOUTH & FAMILIES